

PUZZLED

BY ANDREW TREVINO

I look at the painting.

I look at it with a blank expression.

I take off light green, dark green

Light blue, dark blue.

I take off more and more until no colors except for black and white are there.

I waited to see what to do next.

I thought of what to do next.

Then I got it.

Take off the shapes line by line

Curve by curve

But there was nothing left.

So I thought I had to put everything back.

I put it all back, colors and all,

But it was different.

So I got mad and threw it in the trash.

That is why I'm puzzled.
