Leta Austin Foster

Leta began her interior design firm, Leta Austin Foster & Associates, Inc. in Palm Beach over forty years ago with several key principles that she has kept in mind on every project. Each design is inspired by the architecture, location, and clients and keeps with the mantra of “never do the same job twice.” Each of her three daughters followed in her footsteps as interior designers. Sallie now runs the New York office, and India runs the Palm Beach office.

Leta has designed projects across the United States and Caribbean that range from contemporary to landmark preservation and, as such, has established herself as a leading talent in the interior design world. Twenty years ago, in order to finish her projects down to the last detail, Leta opened the Leta Austin Foster Boutique. With linens, china, accessories, stationary, and beautifully detailed children’s clothes from the finest sources in Europe and the United States, the store has become a Palm Beach institution.

Leta has been chosen by House & Garden as one of the “100 Greatest Interior Decorators” and by House Beautiful as one of America’s most trailblazing designers. She has contributed design advice to Elle Décor, Traditional Home, Veranda, and House Beautiful. Her work has been published in several books and all major design magazines as well as commemorated in the book, Traditional Interiors: Leta Austin Foster, India Foster and Sallie Giordano, by Brian Coleman (Gibbs Smith, 2015).

Leta has participated in the Kips Bay, the Rogers Memorial in Southampton, and the Red Cross in Palm Beach show houses. In May, 2017, Leta received an honorary doctorate from the New York School of Interior Design. She plans to work until the day she dies.
