- Alter, Judy. Extraordinary Women of the American West. New York: Children's Press, a Division of Grolier Publishing Co., 1999.
Chronicles the exploits and achievements of more than 50 women in the past and present of America's West, including the guide and interpreter Sacajawea, journalist Jessie Benton Fremont and author Willa Cather.
- Bennett, Virginia, editor. Cowgirl Poetry. Salt Lake City: Gibbs-Smith Publisher, 2001.
Presents classic poems that reflect the spirit of those who have gone before, while contemporary poems show cowgirls are still ridin' tall in the saddle.
- Flood, Elizabeth Clair. Cowgirls, Women of the Wild West. Santa Fe: Zon International Publishing Company, 2000.
Pays tribute to the life and legacy of the pioneer woman in the American West, including ranch women, Wild West show performers and those competing in the rodeo arena.
- Farley, Ronnie, Editor. Cowgirls, Contemporary Portraits of the American West. New York: Crown Trade Paperbacks, 1995.
Highlights modern cowgirls – both on the ranch and in the arena.
- Freedman, Russell. Children of the Wild West. New York: Ticknor & Fields: A Houghton Mifflin Company, 1983.
Presents a photographic record of the experiences of children of pioneer families and children who already lived in the Wild West – the Indian boys and girls of the day.
- Jordan, Teresa. Cowgirls: Women of the American West. Lincoln: University of Nebraska Press, 1982.
Like her male counterpart, the American cowgirl rides and ropes, understands land and stock and confronts the elements. Jordan traveled 60,000 miles in the West, talking with authentic cowgirls to compile this portrait.
- Kalman, Bobbie. Women of the West. Ontario: Crabtree Publishing Company, 2000.
Describes the lives and experiences of women in the 19th-century North American west, including immigrants, African Americans and Native Americans.
